EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Central Sanskrit University (CSU), New Delhi, successfully completed a high-level academic delegation to the International Conference on Economy, Ecology, and Equity (Triple E & D) held in Singapore. The four-day conference served as a global platform to explore the intersection of ancient Indian wisdom and modern sustainable development.

Under the leadership of Vice Chancellor Prof. Shrinivasa Varkhedi, the university utilized this forum to project Sanskrit Knowledge Systems (SKS) as a vital resource for addressing contemporary global challenges.

STRATEGIC VISION & LEADERSHIP MESSAGE

Prof. Shrinivasa Varkhedi, Vice Chancellor, articulated the institutional vision driving this participation. Highlighting CSU's status as a NAAC A++ accredited and UGC Category-1 institution, he emphasized that the university's mandate extends beyond linguistic preservation to the global application of ancient wisdom.

Key Highlights from the Vice Chancellor's Message

Global Relevance of Dharma

The conference was identified as a critical venue for policymakers and scholars to explore how "Dharmic" principles can offer profound insights into modern economic and ecological crises

Collaborative Ecosystem

Prof. Varkhedi stressed the necessity of fostering partnerships among governments, civil society, and educational institutions to implement solutions inspired by Indian heri-

From Theory to Policy

A core objective set by the leadership was to translate abstract Dharmic insights into concrete policy measures and practices that effect meaningful change at local and global levels

INSTITUTIONAL PARTICIPATION

The Central Sanskrit University ensured robust representation to maximize academic exchange. A total of 20 delegates represented the university, ensuring a diverse range of expertise from across the institution's network.

- CSU Officials: 03 Senior Officials
- Faculty Representation: 17 Selected Faculty Members
- Campus Representation: The delegation comprised experts representing 7 different campuses of the University.

CONCLUSION

The International Conference marked a significant step in the internationalization of Sanskrit studies. By engaging with experts from various countries, Central Sanskrit University has reaffirmed its commitment to promoting Indian Knowledge Systems (IKS) not just as a subject of historical study, but as a living framework for solving the challenges of the 21st century.
